

BANNER CONTEST:

As many of you realized, the banner with the little dinosaur I've used at the top of my first six letters is a screenshot from the free game that shows up on the Google Chrome browser when you open it without an internet connection. I got the idea from my friend Amélie who set up an in-person AMA (Ask-Me-Anything) booth for me at McGill before the pandemic. Amélie and I sat at the display for a few hours and chatted with people passing by about the internet and my research. I loved the idea of using the dinosaur game screenshot on my letters and each month I've gotten a higher high score in the game to signal my progress. With a high score now that's over 4000 though, I'm not sure I can keep this up for the coming months. Therefore, I'm looking for something new.

If you're up for it, send me a visual I can use to begin one of my letters in the coming six months. It can be something original that you've created or something you find that seems like it could work. I'm open to anything!
